The full sequence

Day 0 · LinkedIn Connect

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Send immediately

Connection request note:

Hi {{first_name}} - I help gambling and gaming brands run compliant Meta/Google campaigns that don't get banned mid-scale. Would love to connect.

Day 1 · Email 1 — The Opener

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 1 day

Subject: Quick question about your ad accounts

Hi {{first_name}},

Is {{company}} able to run acquisition on Meta and Google at the scale you want - or does the account keep getting restricted before campaigns get traction?

I'm Cameron, co-founder of Transparent eCom. We help regulated brands get compliant ads live on Meta and Google - no blurring, no bans, no workarounds.

Gambling is one of the hardest categories to advertise. Most teams burn weeks cycling through accounts, adjusting targeting, and rebuilding after every ban. It's a tax on growth almost nobody talks about.

We run compliance-built ad accounts made for restricted verticals like gambling, so acquisition campaigns stay live and scale instead of getting cut off right when they start working.

If that's {{company}}'s situation, worth a conversation. Book a call here.

Best,

Cameron Karkut

Day 3 · SMS 1 — The Nudge

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

Hey {{first_name}}, just emailed you about running {{company}}'s gaming ads on Meta/Google without the constant bans. Worth a quick look?

Day 5 · Email 2 — How It Works

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: Why gambling accounts get banned (and what's fixable)

Hi {{first_name}},

Following up - here's the part most gaming teams miss.

The ban usually isn't triggered by the ad. It's the account underneath: verification, domain and tracking setup, payment standing, geo and policy alignment across every asset. Which is actually good news - it means it's fixable, if you build the account right from the start instead of reacting after the fact.

We run compliance-built accounts designed to survive review, so you can scale acquisition without the account risk hanging over every campaign.

Short deck walks through it - read here (use this trigger: `{{trigger_link.QK1BzLSt58DtGPdXci3m}}`). If a call is easier, grab 30 min here.

Day 7 · Voicemail 1

Channel: Voicemail | Timing: Wait 2 days

Ringless voicemail script (~20–25 sec):

Hey `{{first_name}}`, this is Cameron from Transparent eCom. Quick one — is `{{company}}` able to scale acquisition on Meta and Google, or does the account keep getting restricted before campaigns get traction? Gambling is one of the toughest categories out there, and most teams burn weeks rebuilding after every ban. We run compliance-built accounts made for exactly this. Give me a call back at number — again, number. Thanks.

Day 9 · LinkedIn DM 1

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Wait 2 days

LinkedIn message:

Hi `{{first_name}}` - reached out by email but figured LinkedIn might be easier.

We keep gambling and gaming ad accounts alive on Meta/Google so acquisition campaigns actually scale. Happy to send a short case study - worth a quick chat?

Day 11 · Email 3 — The Proof

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: How restricted brands actually scale

Hi `{{first_name}}`,

Sharing something relevant.

We run acquisition for brands across restricted verticals in exactly `{{company}}`'s position, where account risk was capping growth.

On compliance-built accounts, brands see a 40% higher approval rate than standard and stay with us 16 months on average - because campaigns stay live and scale instead of getting killed mid-flight. The difference was the account infrastructure, not the creative.

If a call feels like too much right now, we also just published our 2026 Meta & Google Ad Compliance Checklist - the exact framework we use to keep accounts alive. Download the checklist here. Or grab 30 min and I'll map it to {{company}}.

Day 13 · SMS 2 — Follow-up Bump

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

Hey {{first_name}} - still happy to show you how we keep gaming ad accounts alive so acquisition scales. Quick call this week? Book here.

Day 15 · Email 4 — The Direct Ask

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: 30 minutes to unblock your acquisition?

Hi {{first_name}},

To keep this simple:

- No minimum ad spend required.
- We review your actual account with you before anything changes, at no cost.
- Every additional platform beyond your first is 20% off, so scaling to a new channel doesn't mean starting over.

I'd rather show you real numbers than keep describing it. Grab 30 min here.

Day 17 · LinkedIn DM 2

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Wait 2 days

LinkedIn message:

Hi {{first_name}} - circling back. If ad account risk is capping {{company}}'s growth, I'd love 15 min to show you how our compliance-built accounts keep campaigns live. Book here.

Day 19 · Voicemail 2

Channel: Voicemail | Timing: Wait 2 days

Ringless voicemail script (~20–25 sec):

Hey {{first_name}}, Cameron from Transparent eCom again. Still think there's a real fit for {{company}} - we keep gambling and gaming ad accounts alive so acquisition scales instead of getting cut off. If it's worth a look, call me at number. Again, number. Thanks.

Day 21 · SMS 3 — Final Bump

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

{{first_name}}, last nudge - want the breakdown on scaling {{company}}'s acquisition without account bans, or should I close this out?

Day 23 · Email 5 — The Breakup

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: Should I close this out?

Hi {{first_name}},

I've reached out a few times about keeping {{company}}'s acquisition campaigns live and scaling, and wanted to check whether this is worth pursuing now or better revisited later.

This tends to matter most for gambling, betting, and gaming brands that run Meta/Google ads, hit account restrictions, and want campaigns that actually stay live.

Here's a quick read on how we do it. (use this trigger: {{trigger_link.QK1BzLSt58DtGPdXci3m}})
If the timing isn't right, that's completely fine - just let me know and I'll follow up accordingly.

Best,
Cameron Karkut
