The full sequence

Day 0 · LinkedIn Connect

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Send immediately

Connection request note:

Hi {{first_name}} - I help peptide brands run compliant ads on Meta/Google without the constant account shutdowns. Would love to connect.

Day 1 · Email 1 — The Opener

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 1 day

Subject: Quick question about your ad account

Hi {{first_name}},

How many times has {{company}} had an ad account shut down or restricted in the last year?

I'm Cameron, co-founder of Transparent eCom. We help regulated brands get compliant ads live on Meta and Google - no blurring, no bans, no workarounds.

For most peptide brands the answer is "too many" - and the usual response is to soften the copy, swap the images, and resubmit. It rarely fixes anything, because the problem almost never starts with the creative. It starts with the account infrastructure underneath it.

We run compliant ad accounts built specifically for restricted verticals like peptides - so campaigns stay live and scale instead of getting killed every few weeks.

If that's {{company}}'s situation, worth a conversation. Book a call here.

Best,

Cameron Karkut

Day 3 · SMS 1 — The Nudge

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

Hey {{first_name}}, just emailed you about keeping {{company}}'s peptide ads live without the constant account shutdowns. Worth a quick look?

Day 5 · Email 2 — How It Works

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: Why the account matters more than the creative

Hi {{first_name}},

Following up - here's the part most peptide brands never get told plainly.

When an account gets banned, it's usually not the ad that triggered it. It's the setup underneath: verification gaps, domain and tracking issues, payment standing, policy alignment across every asset.

Teams spend weeks rewriting copy and resubmitting the same ad five ways - and it still gets flagged, because the issue was never the creative.

We run compliance-built accounts designed to survive review from the start, so you're not rebuilding from zero every month.

Short deck walks through it - read here (use this trigger: `{{trigger_link.egfi10VJpDEoSmwcnxQn}}`) . If a call is easier, grab 30 min here.

Day 7 · Voicemail 1

Channel: Voicemail | Timing: Wait 2 days

Ringless voicemail script (~20–25 sec):

Hey `{{first_name}}`, this is Cameron from Transparent eCom. Quick one - how many times has `{{company}}` had an ad account shut down this year? For most peptide brands it's more than they'd like. The usual fix is softening copy and resubmitting, but that rarely works, because the problem starts with the account, not the creative. We run compliance-built accounts made for exactly this. Give me a call back at number - again, number. Thanks.

Day 9 · LinkedIn DM 1

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Wait 2 days

LinkedIn message:

Hi `{{first_name}}` - reached out by email but figured LinkedIn might be easier.

We keep peptide brands' ad accounts alive on Meta/Google by fixing the account infrastructure, not just the creative. Happy to send a short case study - worth a quick chat?

Day 11 · Email 3 — The Proof

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: Third agency in three years

Hi `{{first_name}}`,

Sharing something relevant.

We've worked with brands in exactly `{{company}}`'s position - live one week, banned the next, rebuilding constantly.

"You were my third agency in three years - the difference was you'd actually tell me the truth on compliance instead of running borderline ads that got me banned." - Florence Kirley, GuardLab

On compliance-built accounts, brands like hers see a 40% higher approval rate than standard and stay live for months at a stretch.

If a call feels like too much right now, we also just published our 2026 Meta & Google Ad Compliance Checklist - the exact framework we use to keep accounts alive. Download the checklist here.

Or grab 30 min and I'll map it to {{company}}.

Day 13 · SMS 2 — Follow-up Bump

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

Hey {{first_name}} - still happy to show you how we keep peptide ad accounts alive instead of rebuilding every month. Quick call this week? Book here.

Day 15 · Email 4 — The Direct Ask

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: 30 minutes to keep your ads alive?

Hi {{first_name}},

To keep this simple:

- No minimum ad spend required.
- We review your actual account with you before anything changes, at no cost.
- Send us an ad you've struggled to get approved - we'll show you exactly what it takes to run it in a real account.

I'd rather show you than keep describing it. Grab 30 min here.

Best,
Cameron Karkut

Day 17 · LinkedIn DM 2

Channel: LinkedIn | Timing: Wait 2 days

LinkedIn message:

Hi {{first_name}} - circling back.

If {{company}} is tired of rebuilding ad accounts after every ban, I'd love 15 min to show you how our compliance-built accounts stay live.

Day 19 · Voicemail 2

Channel: Voicemail | Timing: Wait 2 days

Ringless voicemail script (~20–25 sec):

Hey {{first_name}}, Cameron from Transparent eCom again. Still think there's a real fit for {{company}} — we keep peptide brands' ad accounts alive by fixing the infrastructure, not the creative. If it's worth a look, call me at number. Again, number. Thanks.

Day 21 · SMS 3 — Final Bump

Channel: SMS | Timing: Wait 2 days

Text message:

{{first_name}}, last nudge - want the breakdown on keeping {{company}}'s accounts live, or should I close this out?

Day 23 · Email 5 — The Breakup

Channel: Email | Timing: Wait 2 days

Subject: Should I close this out?

Hi {{first_name}},

I've reached out a few times about keeping {{company}}'s ad accounts alive and scaling, and wanted to check whether this is worth pursuing now or better revisited later.

This tends to matter most for peptide brands that run Meta/Google ads, have been shut down before, and want campaigns that actually stay live.

Here's a quick read on how we do it. (use this trigger: {{trigger_link.egfi10VJpDEoSmbwcnxQn}})

If the timing isn't right, that's completely fine - just let me know and I'll follow up accordingly.

Best,
